4. The United States Army in Europe Commanders' Safety Council may add members as required. Specialized expertise and guests will be invited on a routine basis.

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES. The United States Army in Europe Commanders' Safety Council facilitator, Deputy Chief of Staff, G1, is responsible for conducting the council in accordance with this charter and meeting the established task objectives. All members are responsible for active participation in the process. Attendance by principles, either in person or by VTC, is mandatory.

CONCEPT OF OPERATIONS. The Council is a premier command event and provides a forum for senior command leaders to understand the environment, share lessons and experiences, and sharpen their focus to help prevent the needless loss of life and limb in the Army in Europe team -- our soldiers, civilians and family members.

1. The Council will address a wide range of issues, including the following.
 - a. Track and review warnings and indicators to identify trends and targets.
 - b. Leaders present lessons learned from specific recent accidents.
 - c. Provide key lessons learned from Europe and Army-wide current experience.
 - d. Provide safety guidance and priorities.
 - e. Highlight and discuss upcoming safety and risk reduction efforts.
 - f. Develop accident prevention initiatives and programs.
 - g. Establish corrective action and define measurable objectives.
2. The Council will meet quarterly or at the direction of the Commanding General.
3. The Council will meet via video teleconferencing for commanders and staff not in Heidelberg.
4. The USAREUR Safety and Occupational Health Manager will prepare official minutes for the Safety Council following every meeting. Tasks and milestones developed by the council will be included in the minutes of the meeting.
5. The United States Army in Europe Commanders' Safety Council is formally chartered until 1 October 2005.

COORDINATION. The USAREUR Safety and Occupational Health Manager will coordinate Safety Council decisions, tasks and requirements with all organizations, internal and external, affected by recommended courses of action. The United States Army in Europe Commanders' Safety Council leadership will review this charter at least annually and coordinate changes as necessary.
